began to buzz away in his bonnet and Pres | inridge and of Stevenson defend us. ton was soon in the maslstram. He went to Congress and once at Washington be soon fell into the ways of Congressmen. The much for his nature, even if he had tried got caught. A lovely little duck of a crea ture, whom Charlie Kincaid describes as 18 and "as plump as a partridge and as liquid blue eyes, cheeks like peaches and rose bud lips tipped with dew," sized up the eloquent mountaineer and played him for a position in the Patent Office. He could not turn a deaf ear to the appeals of pleading beauty and although she was not from Kentucky, Mr. Taulbee registered her from the Blue Grass State and on the hope of her love and smiles, he obtained for her the coveted position. This was last March and the Congressman returned to his mountain home, but made many ex cuese for repeated returns to the Capital, till early in the fall, when he went back permanently. Since then he has been living on love and swimming in a sea of roses. He made almost daily visits to his charmer at the Patent Office, and while the tongues of the goesips were set to running, nothing combined assaults of them all and come upon which to base a very juicy scandal out gloriously triumphant in the end. was developed till last week, when the Congreesman and his fair protege were caught in a most compromising position in a secluded portion of the Patent Office, The woman screamed, of course, and Pres beat a hasty retreat. Since then the scandal has been on every tongue and the newspapers have not been silent on the subject. The fact that Taulbee is a preacher makes the matter all the worse and he no doubt wishes Daniels and Barbour to represent her in now that he had never left the mountain fastnesses, where he could have expounded the injunction, "Be virtuous and you will Mahone and his me too's got the upper be happy," and run less risk of getting band. caught when he failed to practice what he preached.

it's two to one that he would give considerable boot to trade his luck for ready cash. When his case was on trial he bet his at- ried a year. torney a cigar that the jury would condemn him to death and won as easily as rolling off a log. His partner in crime was also sentenced to die and the time of their exit fixed for the same day. It happens, however, that the gallows from which they are to dangle was constructed to work off one man at a time only and the other day Blinkey proposed to Rath to draw straws to decide which should be hung first. A long and short straw were prepared and the guard held them to Morgan. He drew the short one, which was agreed to 'mean to hang last. Roth objected, saying he had been given no chance. The straws were then handed to him and he draw the long heats. If, however, Blinky is to see his partner do the contortion act and witness his dying struggles, his few moments lease on life will hardly be less herrible than if were doing the act himself.

is sad indeed and true if not important.

THE astounding statement is made that Minister Buck, who was unbeard of outside of his own locality till the president commissioned him to represent the United States at Peru, is a candidate to succeed Mr. Beck in the Senate. The cheek of a government mule has heretofore been considered the climax of efforts in that direction, but the cheek of this little Buck PARSON TAULBEE, who represents the causes that of the g. m. to pale into insig-10th Kentucky District in Congress, is in nificance. It is said that it was done at Blaine's suggestion and that to resist them, and Pres not only fell, but that distinguished letter-writer has plainly what is worse, in the eyes of most people, indicated that he would like to try his hand again at running for the presidency. We gave him credit for more sense. If Cleveland best him before under every disadvanbright as a sunbeam, with nut brown bair, tege, he is sure to mop him off the face of the earth since he has served his country so well and shown the true greatness of which he is made. DISAPPOINTED at the smallness of the labor vote in New York at the recent election and believing that if the democrate will adopt the suggestions made by the February. Congress adjourned early in President in favor of tariff reform, there will be no especial need for him, Henry George has definitely decided not to be a candidate for president next year, nor allow the labor party to enter the campaign. One by one the roses fall, one by one the little so-called parties learn that the demo cratic party is the only party of the people and the only one that can withstand the

JOHN S. BARBOUR was unanimously nominated for U.S. Senator by the democratic caucus of the Virginia legislature. He is a very able man and the contrast between him and the man he succeeds, Rid dleberger, will be decidedly marked. It is a pity that he does not at once take the office. Unfortunately Riddleberger's time does not expire till March, 1889. With the Senate, Virginia will be able to resume the former proud position she held before
